My search for a business school that would suit my ambitions began by highlighting the schools that offer relevant courses in addition to providing opportunities to further my career. I specifically wanted an institution that affords the students the chance to develop their passion. The business school in question should be one that will nurture my passion for entrepreneurship. During my search, the University of Pennsylvania stood out as an institution with a flexible curriculum, a diverse student population and most importantly, gives the prospecting entrepreneurs the opportunity to pursue their goals.

My academic background is outstanding in all subjects that I undertook; however, I have always had a natural bias to economics. Because of my practical mindset, I prefer the economics that applies to real situations in life and gives solutions to challenges. One of the main reasons for my application to Wharton is the fact that the institution has an excellent record and reputation of producing outstanding graduates. The institution is also known for providing unique and unequalled education to its students. Besides, the University of Pennsylvania affords the students the opportunity to access education that is geared towards solving the real world problems. The opportunity for students to study and learn in other schools through the exchange programs is a unique chance that I will embrace to learn more about entrepreneurship and the economic challenges in the world. I am certain that with the support of the dedicated teaching and nonteaching staff in Wharton, I will come out a sharper and intellectually sound individual with the ability to offer solutions to problems.

Wharton promises to be a perfect place for me to develop my business skills. I say this because of my experience in my hometown where there are various opportunities for business which are unfortunately untapped. To achieve my dreams of launching start-ups in my hometown to help the community and my generation, I will seek to draw on the conducive academic atmosphere and environment provided by Pennsylvania University. For example, I have learned from my searches that the professors at the institution are very approachable, and I will use this opportunity to widen my knowledge from their unparalleled experience. Besides, the program that helps ambitious students to present their business ideas to the Pennsylvania Wharton Innovation Fund is a welcome opportunity for me to tap into and pitch my entrepreneurial ideas.

From my teenage years, I have always liked to meet and form a friendship with diverse people. I have to international camps on my own since I was thirteen to meet various people and learn different aspects of culture which enable me to have a different perspective of the world. It is, therefore, no surprise when I get attracted to the University because of its varied student population. With this diversity at Wharton, I can be certain that my participation in various programs will enable me and other students develop a better understanding of each other and life aspects that will enhance the national values. With the advent of globalization, one cannot avoid transacting with people with other cultures and diverse opinions and that is why with Pennsylvania University, I will be prepared to venture into the business world.
